Creation Museum Celebrates Third Anniversary, Dedicates New Children's Exhibits May 28 Ribbon Cutting for "Knee-High Museum" Set for 8:30 a.m.

- WHAT: Having recently passed the millionth visitor mark, the world-renown Creation Museum near Cincinnati will celebrate its third anniversary this Friday by dedicating several new children's exhibits, which together make up the "Knee-High Museum" within the existing museum. Answers in Genesis, the ministry behind the museum, has planned a ribbon-cutting and photo-opp with Ken Ham, Answers in Genesis president and co-founder. Children from an Oklahoma family that helped sponsor the exhibits will cut the ribbon.
- WHEN: Friday, May 28, 2010 (The third anniversary of the Creation Museum)
8:30 a.m. (EDT) ribbon-cutting for children's exhibits
Media are welcome the entire day
- WHERE: The Creation Museum—in the Main Hall
2800 Bullittsburg Church Rd.
Petersburg, KY 41080
(Located two exits west of the Cincinnati Airport; exit 11 off I-275)
- DETAILS: Opened to the public on May 28, 2007, attendance ran so strong the first summer that the Creation Museum saw 250,000 guests by October – a number it hadn't expected to see until the end of the first year. Despite a struggling economy, museum attendance has remained above 300,000 visitors a year, reaching the one millionth visitor milestone in less than three years, on April 26, 2010.

The new "Knee-High Museum" children's exhibits include child-friendly and interactive additions to existing displays. The first set of Knee-High exhibits appears in the Walk Through History portion of the museum. Children can explore Critter Canyon, where a brightly colored handprint invites them to investigate.

Other exhibits follow in the Dig-site room, where three new activities include a huge dinosaur bone (a hadrosaur tibia) that children can touch. They can then create a crayon rubbing to see a secret message appear, and find hidden fossils along the back wall of the room.

The Voyage of the Ark Room boasts another exciting interactive exhibit for children and adults alike. A life-like Noah is sitting at his desk, ready to answer questions about the flood. Children choose a question on the monitor and see the animatronic Noah come to life.

In addition to the high-tech Creation Museum, Answers in Genesis, a biblical apologetics ministry, includes among its outreaches more than 250 teaching meetings each year, an award-winning Web site, and the "Answers" radio program heard on more than 800 stations throughout the United States.
